

Indigenous girls deserve to grow up safe.

During 16 Days of Activism, we honor the strength of girls who face violence and discrimination simply for who they are.

In Guatemala, Laura faced bullying and harassment because of her identity.

Gender violence can begin with words meant to break a child's spirit.

“I was discriminated against for my language, my clothes, and my features. I no longer felt safe.”

At 17, she made a hard choice.

She left home to protect herself.

With KIND's support, Laura began to heal and reclaim her pride.

“I feel proud of who I am.”

Indigenous girls face violence rooted in gender, identity, and culture.

KIND works to ensure they are met with safety.
